This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFATORY NOTE TO THIRD EDITION

This third edition contains a supplementary list of works on trusts published from 1902–1907, with a list of articles in periodicals for the same period.

The literature on this subject is voluminous and therefore the present list, even with the recent additions, is not exhaustive. It is thought, however, that all shades of opinions are represented and that representative writings from all standpoints have been noted.

The present edition is provided with an author and a subject index.

INTRODUCTION TO SECOND EDITION

The most significant addition to Trust literature since the publication of the first edition of this List is the Final report of the United States Industrial Commission. This report gives the conclusions and recommendations of the Commission in regard to industrial combinations.

Individual works to be specially noticed are Clark's "The control of trusts," favoring encouragement of competition; Collier's "The trusts. What can we do with them?" advocates publicity; Dos Passos's "Commercial trusts," favorable to corporations; Jenks's "The trust problem," a new and revised edition, having the benefit of the testimony before the Industrial Commission, of which the author was a member.

The subject of trusts has engaged the attention of several foreign writers: Cossa, "I sindicati industriali;" Duchaine, "La question des trusts;" Flora, "I sindicati industriali;" Katzenstein, "Die Trusts in den Vereinigten Staaten;" Rousiers's, "Les syndicats industriels;" Liefmann, "Die Unternehmerverbände," and "Die Allianzen," in Jahrbücher für Nationalökonomie und Statistik," October, 1900.

Halle has recently contributed an article on trusts to the Handwörterbuch d. Staatswissenschaften, vol. 17, pp. 212–230.

Discussions of trusts in Great Britain may be found in the "Contemporary review," August and September, 1901, and the "New liberal review," January, 1902.

The "United States Special consular report," vol. 21, pt. 3, consists of reports from consuls upon trusts in Europe.

Shibley's "The trust problem solved" represents the views of an industrial reformer. The subject of trusts and corporation law is treated by Dill in his "General corporation act of New Jersey" and "The statutory and case law applicable to private companies under the general corporation act of New Jersey."

Prof. C. J. Bullock's article on "Trust literature: a survey and a criticism," passes in review a considerable number of writings in which a certain classification and estimate is attempted.

INTRODUCTION TO FIRST EDITION

The list is intended to comprise only the chief authorities, pro and con, upon the subject of trusts, and has no pretensions to being a complete bibliography.

The principal reports of legislative investigations have been included, viz: The "coal combine" inquiry in Pennsylvania in 1871; the Congressional investigations of 1888, 1890, 1893 (see entries under United States Congress); reports of committees of the legislature of New York in 1887 and 1897; the report of a committee of the Canadian House of Commons in 1888, and the reports of the Industrial Commission prepared in part by Prof. J. W. Jenks, of Cornell University, lately published.

Halle's "Trusts or industrial combinations," with its footnotes and list of authorities, is a good handbook concerning industrial combinations in the United States down to 1895.

Baker's "Monopolies and the people" treats not only of railroad combinations, but of industrial trusts, monopolies of municipal service, and labor unions. "He subjects the laws of competition to a lengthy * * * analysis, and concludes that combination is a necessary tendency of modern society."

Bonham's "Railway secrecy and trusts" classifies and investigates the methods of great trusts in their relations with railway corporations.

Ely's "Monopolies and trusts" is an outcome of investigations, beginning in 1888, of the theory of monopoly from an economic standpoint. The previous works of this writer also contain scientific discussions of the subject.

Lloyd's "Wealth against commonwealth" is an arraignment of trusts.

Dodd's "Combinations and their abuses" is a defense of the Standard Oil Company.

Gunton's "Trusts and the public" is "a vigorous defense of these great corporations." (See article "Gunton's defense of trusts" in American Review of Reviews, October, 1899.)

The reports of the Chicago Trust Conference contain arguments by distinguished public men on both sides of the question.

Nettleton's "Trusts or competition" is a compilation of extracts from papers and speeches by advocates and opponents of trusts.

Kinley's monograph on trusts, forming a number of "Progress," affords a survey of the history of trusts, with summaries of arguments upon different phases of the question.

The legal aspect of trusts is treated in Beach's "Company law;" "Treatise on the law of monopolies," and in Spelling's "A treatise on trusts and monopolies."

The list of articles in periodicals contains many references to legal periodicals. The Railway and Corporation Law Journal, March 22, 1890, contains a bibliography of the law literature of trusts, including statutes and court decisions.

For current discussions of the general subject of trusts it is of course necessary to consult periodical literature, and the list of references printed herewith is intended to guide to the representative contributions.

About 700 copies of this list were printed as "Concurrent resolution, No. 55, of Fifty-sixth Congress, first session." It is now printed by the Library of Congress in an edition of 1,500 copies.

Smythe, William E. Constructive democracy; the economics of a square deal.
New York: The Macmillan company, 1905. vii, (1), 457 pp. 8°.

Analyzes present conditions, finding four pressing problems, namely, those of monopolies, political corruptions resulting from plutocracy, relations between capital and labor, and lastly, the element of men and women who find themselves "surplus" in an economic sense. The genius of the American people is construction, and democracy must express itself at last in terms of absolute industrial equality. In the last section religion is named as a function to this end. Topics discussed include railroads, government ownership, trusts, federal license of corporations, irrigation, etc.

Snyder, William Lamartine. The interstate commerce act and federal anti-trust laws, including the Sherman act; the act creating the Bureau of corporations; the Elkins act; the act to expedite suits in the federal courts; acts relating to telegraph, military, and post roads; safety appliance law affecting equipment of cars used in interstate commerce, with all amendments. With comments and authorities and a Supplement.
New York: Baker, Voorhis & company, 1906. 2 vols. Frontispiece (map). 8°.

Vol. 2 has title: Supplement to Snyder's Interstate commerce act and federal anti-trust laws embracing the Railway rate bill approved June 29, 1906 . . . including also the Employers' liability bill, Pure food bill, Meat inspection bill and Hall-mark or Jewelers' liability bill.

D. Appleton and company, New York, 1906. ix, (1), 358 pp. 12°.

"In none of the many volumes, or thousands of speeches and articles contributed to newspapers and magazines, on the 'trust' question has its true legal status been explained. It is truly stated in the opening chapter, though only incidentally involved in the discourse." Preface, p. vii.

Chapters VII-XIII are taken up with consideration of the "Evils of, and abuses by, railroads in private hands;" and the last chapter argues the "Constitutionality, feasibility and advantages of government ownership."
